my love for knowledge

is enough to reach

beyond me

beyond worlds

beyond after-worlds.

p. provost

for everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven.

a time to be born, and a time to die;

a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what is planted;

a time to kill, and a time to heal;

a time to weep, and a time to laugh;

a time to mourn, and a time to dance;

a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together;

a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;

a time to seek, and a time to lose;

a time to keep, and a time to cast away;

a time to rend, and a time to sew;

a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;

a time to love, and a time to hate;

a time for war, and a time for peace . . .

love is all there is, it makes the world go 'round.

love and only love, it can't be denied.

no matter what you think about it,

you just won't be able to do without it.

take a tip from one who's tried.

well, there are two ways of looking at school: one very pessimistically, and one that says i'm afraid that schools are grossly inadequate for what they're supposed to be doing. too many — too many who don't love the art of teaching, too many who don't like kids. . . . the only people who seem to get along are the custodians.

my personal little view of education, way back in the corner, tucked in the back when i get home, is that i'm enraged about it. it's unfair to student and faculty alike, and i'm sure the approach to education has to be one where the student has hopefully been encouraged to discover himself, and with that discovery of self, the teachers then discover what he's capable of doing and encourage him in that channel; to do what he can do, not what he must. . . .

why should we catagorize students? . . . if you're alive, you should gain some respect. what you do with your life — the fact that you have decided to do something with your life — should gain you the rest of the respect. if a man chooses to dig a ditch or a man chooses to be a doctor and dig inside a patient, each makes a contribution . . . all people's views are valid to a great extent, if you judge those views on their experiences.

living is a very reasonable experience. it's depressing to think that people can't accept that. that's enough and it's tough enough, but it's also good enough . . . when you consider the alternative. . . .

find out who you are; and when you find you are not so different from others, that should be no discomfort. for man, as he is, is not bad. what to respect most is that you are here and you have the choice of any road to take. don't take the road too quickly. don't forget you touch those you pass by.

killing yourself in sports,

just to say, "i've got spirit."

giving up your time to do things with your class,

just for spirit.

decorating the school, whether the team wins or not,

just for spirit.

weeping at graduation, not just for spirit,

but for love.
